FROM THE PRINCIPAL'S PEN.....

“When I was in college, I was the editor of the literary magazine and insisted neither the editors nor the writers be specifically identified-only our student numbers appeared on the title page. I love that idea and still do.”

-Jonathan Carroll

There is no doubt that the present young generation is really active and enthusiastic to do innovative practices. It is the responsibility of the society and educational institutions to provide better platforms to these young people. Our college youth is also working effectively on various activities and events. The first intercollegiate event AAKAR organized by Student's council of our college is the perfect example of their enthusiasm. The present Newsletter is the true mirror of all the activities and events done by our college staff and students. I am happy to publish second issue of Newsletter of this year. Congratulations to the entire editing team.

EDITOR'S MESSAGE.....

I hope that reading this newsletter will have an impact on and encourage readers to have an impact on others. We may never know how much our words or actions influence the lives of those around us. But we can choose daily to be a positive influence on others in a way that could change the rest of their lives even if it's just within the walls of where you work. Here at NSS, students and colleagues not only support and encourage each other but also successfully arranging various inter collegiate and Intra collegiate events. The present Newsletter is representing the effort of our college achievements.

Enjoy the reading....

ARTICLES.....

BECAUSE OF YOU !

*Because of you
my world is now whole,*

*Because of you
love lives in my soul.*

*Because of you
I have laughter in my eyes,*

*Because of you
I am no longer afraid of goodbyes.*

*You are my pillar
my stone of strength,
With me through all seasons and great times of length.*

My love for you is pure boundless through space and time, it grows stronger everyday with the knowledge that you'll always be mine.

*At the altar
I will joyously say 'I do',
for I have it all now and it's all because of you.*

Being a Social Worker Means...

You will never be bored.
You will always be frustrated.
You will be surrounded by challenges.
So much to do and so little time.
You will carry immense responsibility and very little authority.
You will step into people's lives
and you will make a difference.
Some will bless you
Some will curse you.
You will see people at their worst~
and their best.
You will never cease to be amazed at people's capacity for love, courage, and endurance.
You will see life begin~and end.
You will experience resounding triumphs and devastating failures.
You will cry a lot.
You will laugh a lot.
You will know what it is to be human and to be humane.

She Begged On Streets So She Could Feed Every Orphan She Saw! Can You Imagine Anyone More Heroic?

SindhutaiSapkal's life started as being an unwanted child, followed by an abusive husband who abandoned her when she was nine months pregnant. The circumstances she has faced could force anyone to lose courage and succumb to the adverse situations. But Sindhutai emerged stronger with every difficulty she faced and became a 'mother' to over 1400 homeless children when she herself was in a hand-to-mouth situation!

SindhutaiSapkal is much more than just a name. The 68-year-old lady hides many stories behind her strong personality. Full of energy and passion, Sindhutai is commonly referred to as "Mother of Orphans".

"I am there for all those who have no one," she says with a lot of affection. You can see flashes of her life as she talks about her journey and how she became the "mother". Being an unwanted child, she was nicknamed "Chindhi" which means a torn piece of cloth. Born on 14 November, 1948 at PimpriMeghe village in Wardha district of Maharashtra, she was keen on completing her education and used Bharadi tree leaves to write as the family could not afford a slate. Her early marriage put an end to her desire to study.

She got married at a tender age of 10 to a 30-year old man. Her abusive husband beat her up and threw her out of the house when she was 20 and nine-months pregnant. She gave birth to a baby girl in a cow shelter outside their house the same day and walked a few kilometres in that condition to her mother's place, who refused to give shelter to her. "I cut the umbilical cord with a sharp-edged stone lying nearby," she recalls. The incident deeply affected her and she thought of committing suicide, but gave up that thought and started begging at railway platforms for food to look after her daughter.

As she spent more time begging, she realized that there are many orphans and children abandoned by their parents. Having faced the difficulties herself, she could feel their pain and she decided to adopt them. She started begging more earnestly in order to feed the many children that she had adopted. Gradually she decided to adopt every child who came across as an orphan and, over a period of time, she emerged as the "mother of orphans".

Till date she has adopted and nurtured over 1,400 orphans, helped them get an education, got them married and supported them to settle down in life. She is fondly referred to as "mai" (mother). She treats them as her own children and some of them are now lawyers, doctors and engineers. "When I was out myself on the streets begging for food and fighting for survival each day, I realized that there are so many orphans who have nobody to go to. I decided to take care of them and raise them as my own," Sindhutai says. To eliminate the feeling of partiality among children she gave away her biological daughter to ShrimantDagduShethHalwai, Pune.

Sindhutai with her love and compassion has gathered a huge family of 207 sons-in-law, 36 daughters-in-law and over 1000 grandchildren. Till date she continues to fight for the next meal. She does not take support from anyone but still gives speeches to earn her daily bread and butter. "Hunger made me speak and this became my source of income. I give many speeches at various places and this gets me some money which I use to take care of my children," she says.

Many years after being abandoned by her husband, he came back to her and apologized for his harsh deeds. Having devoted all her life to the orphans, she forgave him and accepted him as her child, as she could only harbour motherly love for all. For her immense courage and compassion she has received over 500 awards. She has six organizations operating under her name which work for various needs of orphans. "I had no one with me, everyone abandoned me. I knew the pain of being alone and unwanted. I didn't want anyone to go through the same. And I feel immense pride and pleasure to see some of my children doing so well in their lives. One of my children made a documentary on my life," she says.
